CASE OF DESTITUTION

Family With Sick Baby Threatened With Ejection.

MUST MOVE WEDNESDAY

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS AND MAYOR PROMISE TO ACT.

The family of Andrew Boyle, consisting of himself, his wife and several dependent children, have until next Wednesday to move out of a house in the rear of 130 South Eleventh East street, on pain of being ejected by the law. The order comes from C. E. Taylor, acting as agent for Banker John E. Dooly, and but for the fact that one of the children, a 2-year-old bo is very low with typhoid fever, the famvery low with typhoid fever, the tamily would have been ejected bodily yes-

Boyle is a laboring man and was un-Boyle is a laboring man and was until Aug. 9 employed on the university building. On that date while assisting in raising a huge rock to its place, the derrick gave way and he was crushed by its fall. This incapacitated him for work and laid him up in bed for a number of weeks, during which he fell behind in his rent, the sum of $5 a month. His ill luck continued when one of the children was taken down with typhoid fever, and at about the same time a notice to quit the premises was served on him. Boyle claims ses was served on him. Boyle claims it was for political reason

Claims Political Reasons.

"The man who makes the canvass for the Republicans came around here," he said, "and asked our politics. My wife told him that I had always been a Re-publican, but not having a loaf of bread in the house, I became a Democrat and intended to vote the Democratic ticket. It was just three days after that that It was just three days after that that the notice for us to vacate came. We couldn't do 't, for a second child had been taken with the fever, and to move him meant his death, the doctors told us. I was forged to call on the county for assistance and they promised to pay the rent, but a second notice came for us to get out immediately or we would be moved out in the street.

would be moved out in the street.
"Today they came up to do it, Mr.
Taylor and Constable West. We pleadlittle one, but the agent was going to have it done anyway. Mr. West, upon hearing the circumstances, finally gave us until next Wednesday to do ... mething. He said he would do that much g. He said he would do that huch us on his own responsibility. But," sighed the unfortunate ten-"I have no way of raising the money, my boy is at death's door and I don't know what I'll do. That we will have to get out Wednesday seems plain enough. The agent refuses absoutely to give us any more time.

Dr. King was telephoned yesterday that the Boyle family was about to be ejected and that one of the children was sick. The doctor went at once to the house and saw that the child was suffering with a severe attack of typhoid and was without proper nourishment. He at once informed the mayor and the county commissioners, and both have agreed to make an investigation of the case.

of the case.

Meanwhile the family is preparing to move from the miserable home into the street, being without the $10 they are behind and the $5 necessary to settle for the present of the street. for the present month.

HOW THE TOOTH WAS PULLED.—
The little son of A. F. Barnes hit upon a novel way of getting rid of a bad tooth. The tooth was loose and aching but the boy was afraid to have it pulled. He refused to allow his father to put a string around it and yank it out in the good old way, and he refused to go near a dentist. But when he went to bed that night he left word that he wanted some one to come up late and read a note to be found on his bed. When Mr. Barnes went home he went to the boy's bed and found that he had put a string around his bad tooth, and the note said: "Pa. give the string a jerk." The string was jerked and the trouble was over before the little chap awoke.
